
History through the person: historical biography of the military industrialist

© O.M. Scherbakova

Bauman Moscow State Technical University, Moscow, 105005, Russia

This paper attempts to harness the power of personal stories to explore the biography of one of the leaders of military-industrial complex of the USSR, General Designer of "NPO Machine Building" V.N. Chelomay. The historical biography as a genre has received research in modern historiography new content that solves a critical methodological problem of compatibility of macro-and micro-analysis. The novelty of the study is to reconstruct the history of life of a talented scientist and organizer of production, in the study of the historical society in which it was formed and was realized as a professional.

Keywords: historiography, historical biography, personify history, general manager V.N. Chelomay, military-industrial complex.

Scherbakova O.M., Ph.D., Assoc. Professor of the History Department of Bauman Moscow State Technical University. Sphere of scientific interests: the development of science, technology and industry in Russia in the XX century, history of the higher technical education, personal history. Author of more than 30 scientific publications. e-mail: scherbakova@bmstu.ru
